Agricultural Experiment Station of Nebraska, Sugar Beet Series, No. 2. Bulletin of the Louisiana State Experiment Station, relative to Diseases of Farm Animals. Proceedings of State Agricultural Society, held at Alexandria, La. , January, 1891. The Ramie Plant, by W. H. Murray, Supt. of Ramie Culture in California. : o: WITH OUR HEADERS. A correspondent, on page 297, gives some valuable points in regard to the proper setting of steam boilers, which could only have been gained by long experience. His reference to the different results obtained from boilers in different localities, that were set in the same way as nearly as possible, may perhaps be explained by the different elevation of the two localities, or the fact that in one, owing to proximity of high land, the wind had a downward course instead of a rapid upward course, sufficient to make a perceptible difference between the two. The question raised by our correspondent is one which will bear observation and study. A very readable story is that commencing on page 300, describing a sugar plantation on Barbados, It sounds like a tale of a hundred years ago, when sugar plantations and mills were run in the primitive style by the jolly darkies who have passed from the modern scenes. Following the above, page 308, is a really instructive essay on plantation managers, which every one interested in sugar should read. The writer is evidently a man of culture, experience and keen observation, whose sympathievS and...
