Excerpt: . ing a grace which lies beyond all thought of the larger world. (to Mrs. Fields) Little Compton, R. I., 8 September, 1880. Dear Mrs. Fields, -- This is not a land where it is easy to write letters. I can t help being idle, except in thought, and I think I never knew so quiet a country. It is all like the places one goes to on the way to sleep. There are n t any high hills, but you look over the fields which are so like moors, and you look and look, and there is nothing you have to stop and wonder about, the big roundheaded windmills are all still, and today is a grey day which can t make up its mind to take the trouble to rain, and here we are sitting by the fireplace, and I was busy watching the smoke until I thought I would write a letter or two. And whether I drive or sail I am the most placid and serene of all your friends, and I forget that I ever was a girl who could n t go to sleep at night. After this first letter the days passed without any record which has been preserved, until bits of diary occur written during her life at South Berwick in the following years. The country is beautiful to look at, but it is such clear cold weather that you feel as if you were under...
